API Status

Service Availability Checks

Operational status of the API's	The monitoring of the DMI Open Data API's uses the free service freshping from freshworks.com . The monitoring status therefore reflects how the freshping service sees the API and your experiences may differ due to using a different internet connection than freshping.
Underlying services	Most of the underlying our cloud provider (GovCloud) services have to be up for the Open Data API to be functional.

The API services are expected to have an availability around 99.9 %.

There are currently no planned service windows that will affect the operational status of the Open Data API.
